NEW YORK'S GREAT LIBRARY BUILDING

Building, Site And Contents Worth Fifty Million Dollars—Many Distinguished Men Present at Dedication, President Taft Among The Number.

Special to Telegram.

New York, May 23.—Fifty thousand persons witnessed the dedication today of New York's great library building, which cost $12,000,000. The site is worth $20,000,000 and the estimated value of the contents of the library when it shall have been completed is $18,000,000. The total capacity is four million books. The building covers a space of 390x270 feet, or 10,500 square feet. Over 375,000 cubic feet of marble was used in its construction. The building has 200 rooms and halls and 75 miles of book shelves.

At the dedication exercises were President Taft, Governor Dix, Mayor Gaynor, Archbishop Farley, Bishop Greir and many other notables, who assisted in the ceremonies. The principal address was made by Trustee George L. Rives, who reviewed the history of the institution.

One of the noteworthy features of the occasion was the entrance into the assembly of John Bigelow, who is 93 years of age. He is the president of the library and entered leaning on the arm of President Taft.

In his speech President Taft said:

"This day crowns a work of national importance. It is not in the number of volumes or pamphlets or manuscripts that this library stands first in the world, for I believe it is only sixth or seventh from that standpoint; but it is in facilities for circulation and the great number of books distributed each year for the use of your citizens, that is easily takes first rank."

Through its sixty Carnegie branches eight million books are annually circulated by this library.

Dispute Over Dog Caused Shooting.

Spray, N. C., May 23.—D. M. Vernon, a well known farmer who lives about a mile from Spray, was shot three times yesterday with a pistol by Gable Murphy. They got into a dispute about Vernon killing Murphy's dog.

It seems that Murphy's dog was hanging around Vernon's house and that Mr. Vernon killed the dog. Murphy then got his revolver and went to hunt Vernon up, and when he found him fired three balls into Vernon's body. Three doctors were summoned from Spray and Leaksville and his wounds dressed, but it is reported that Mr. Vernon is still in a serious condition.

Mr. Vernon is a well known farmer of that neighborhood and a well thought of man. Murphy lives on the adjoining farm.

It was not known whether or not Murphy has been arrested yet.

NEW YORK HAS NEW POLICE COM.

Special to Telegram.

New York, May 23.—Captain Rhinelander Waldo succeeds Commissioner Cropsey, resigned, as police commissioner of this city. Waldo leaves the office of fire commissioners and qualified today for his new position. He first served as deputy commissioner under General Bingham and prior to that time had a distinguished career in the United States army. He has studied the police provisions of the principal cities of the world.

Cropsey issued a lengthy interview tonight, saying he resigned because he did not have the confidence of Mayor Gaynor. He attempts to justify his violation of the civil service rules and regulations in making appointments and in the matter of non-promotions.

Statehood Bill Passed House.

Washington, May 23.---The House tonight unanimously passed the statehood bill for New Mexico and Arizona. It requires New Mexico to vote on a substitute providing for an easier method of amending the constitution, and Arizona to vote on an amendment eliminating the recall of judges.

Corral's Resignation Confirmed.

Juarez, Mexico, May 23.—The news of the resignation of Vice President Corral has been confirmed here.

CONCLUDING PROGRAM OF STATE NORMAL

Final Exercises of Commencement Season Yesterday Morning—Governor Kitchin Made Address—Graduates And Prize Winners—President's Report of Year's Work

Gov. W. W. Kitchin delivered the concluding address at the nineteenth annual commencement of the State Normal College yesterday morning, and with the presentation of diplomas to the graduating class the school year ended. Attorney General T. W. Bickett was present and presented a copy of the Constitution of North Carolina to each of the graduates, following the established custom of this institution. Bibles were presented to the graduates, also, by Rev. Melton Clark, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. President J. I. Foust delivered the diplomas to the members of the class.

Governor Kitchin's Address.

The subject of Governor Kitchin's address was "The Necessary Service of Education." He spoke for nearly an hour and a half and had the close attention of the splendid audience present. He made a practical application of his subject to the needs of every day life, saying that he would not enter into a philosophical discussion of the theme. He spoke of man's duty to his Creator, his duty to his neighbor and his duty to himself and made an application to life of the thoughts contained in these three heads of his subject. The address covered a wide range of helpful thought and the discussion of the value of education was calculated to be especially helpful to the students and young people present.

The Wulbern history prize was won by Miss Edith Latham.

The Walker history prize was won by Miss Bessie Jordan.

The Murphy history prize was won by Miss Hattie Burch.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

President J. I. Foust's report of the year's work at the college is of particular interest, and is given in full herewith:

As usual the attendance at the college has been limited by the capacity of the dormitories. The total enrollment of students in the different classes and various departments was 598. The number pupils taught in the Training School was 311. The total number of people, therefore, taught at this institution during the past year amounts to 909. It will be noted that the attendance is about what it has been for several years as it was impossible for us to receive more students than we had places in the dormitories for their accomodation.

During the past year a new Infirmary building has been completed. This building has been occupied for several months and is found admirably adapted to the purpose for which it was erected. After careful consideration, the board of directors decided to erect a building, with capacity sufficient for a largely increased attendance of students at the College. The applications for admission by the young women of the State are so numerous and pressing that I am confident the board was justified in assuming that the General Assembly will soon heed this demand of the people, and was, therefore, wise in providing an infirmary building sufficiently large to meet the requirements of the college when the attendance will doubtless be double what it is today. The old infirmery which has been replaced by this new building was erected when there were only 250 or 300 students in the college. During the past four or five years the health record among the students has been exceptionally good, but the fact that our capacity along this line was so limited was a source of deep concern to the authorities of the college. Had there been an unusual amount of sickness from any cause, it would have been almost impossible for us to care properly for the sick. While we hope that the excellent health record of the past will be maintained, it is a comfort to know that we can meet in the proper manner an emergency if it should arise.

Under present conditions it will be possible for us to undertake another line of work which, in my opinion, will prove exceedingly advantageous to the students. With the enlarged facilities, we can prevent in many cases a physical break-down on the part of the students by transferring them to the Infirmary and by dieting and special care prevent sickness and the consequent loss of time. The prevention of sickness has been the main object of our resident physician, the trained nurse, the director of Physical culture, and her assistant. It will be possible to more thoroughly organize our efforts and thus render more effective service to the students of the institution.

Last fall the college issued its first bulletin. The people of the State established and have maintained the State Normal and Industrial College as an instrument in the upbuilding of North Carolina. It is, therefore, the ambition of the institution to serve the State in every available way. There are gathered at the college each year about six hundred young women from every section of the commonwealth. The courses of study are planned to give these young women the broad culture and spe-

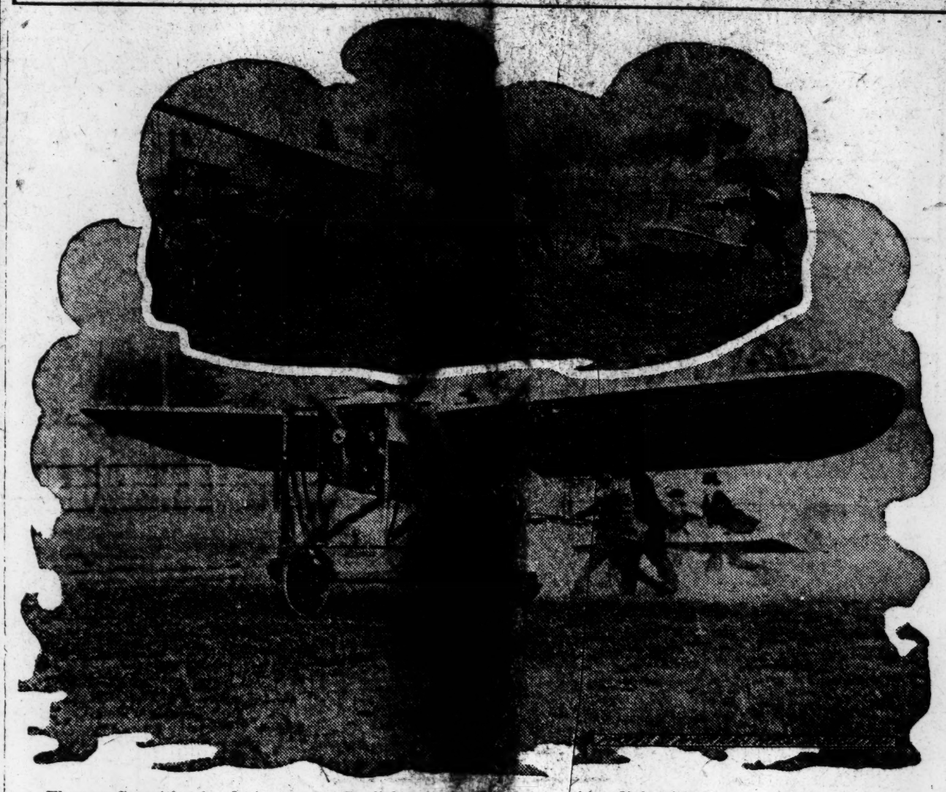
Two Views of Tom Sopwith, the English Aviator, About to Start on a Flight In His Aeroplane.



Thomas Sopwith, the daring young English aviator who is now taking flights in this country, bids fair to make an enviable reputation in the field of aviation. Recently he flew around the Philadelphia city hall at a height of 1,000 feet. He announces his intention to go after the long distance record during his summer's stay in America. A year ago Sopwith won a $20,000 prize by flying across the English channel and landing in Belgium, a distance of 174 miles. Sopwith is only twenty-two years old and is six feet three inches tall.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP SENTIMENT IN RALEIGH

Inadequate Water Supply System And Demand For Great Changes Start Talk Abot City Buying The Waterwork--Must Have Paid Fire Department.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 23.—Reigh's water supply is sharply criticise by the National Board of Fire Underwiters in a report just issued based on trough inspection by experts. The Wte Water Company supplies the city by contract and the report pronounces the supply main entirely too small togive proper support to the smaller mas that distribute the water to the city. Furthermore the retaining capacity is pnounced entirely insufficient. This critism of the water supply is in addition o sharp criticism of the fire fighting uipment in the way of men and apparus. It is declared that Raleigh mustave a full paid department. Steps tois end are, however being taken alrear by the city authorities. There is a trong sentiment developing that the cr must also purchase the waterworks

TENNESSEE JUDGE WAS KILLED; NEGRO LYNCHED

Judge Barry of Sumner County Shot by Negro Who Killed Cook—Negro Wounded Officer in Fight That Followed—Captured And Lynched.

Nashville, May 23.—Judge David J. Barry, of the Sumner county bench, interfered in a quarrel between his cook and a negro named Sweat at the Barry home near Gallatin. Sweat killed the cook and then, turning the gun on Judge Barry, instantly killed him.

A possee went in pursuit and rounded up the negro in the barn. He short from a window hitting Constable Barnes, but was finally captured and was immediately lynched by the infuriated crowd.

BLIND TIGER BOOZE GOES TO THE GUTTERS

Special to Telegram.

Asheville, May 23.—The gutters of this city will run with whiskey when the mandate of the police court pronounced in the trial of four of the famous blind tiger cases is executed. Fifty-three barrels of captured liquor will be poured out according to the order of the court. It is not of 53 varieties, however; being all of one quality and that bad. It is said that local prohibitionists will celebrate the occasion of the destruction of the stuff.

EPISCOPAL COUNCIL MEETS NEXT IN ST. PAUL'S, EDENTON

Special to Telegram.

Fayetteville, N. C., May 23.—The Episcopal Council of the Diocese of East Carolina, in session here, today selected Edenton as the place of meeting for next year, accepting an invitation from Dr. Drane of that place to meet in St. Paul's, the oldest Episcopal church in North Carolina.

In order to aid the Bishop in managing the missionary work of the Diocese the canons were changed so as to consolidate the students' aid, church building and extension committees under the executive missionary committee, and the powers of that body were enlarged.

EX-SHERIFF MORRISON KILLED IN RUNAWAY

Returning Home From City His Mule Ran Away—Was Thrown From Buggy at His Gate And Injured—Died in Half an Hour—Was Ex-Confederate Soldier.

Concord, May 23.—The whole city was shocked last night when the news became known that ex-Sheriff L. McKee Morrison, one of the county's best known and most highly respected citizens, was killed in a runaway accident about 6:30 o'clock just as he reached his home after returning from the city, where he had spent the day.

Sheriff Morrison had been in the city during the day yesterday and left about 5:30 o'clock for his home six miles from here in No. 1 township, driving a spirited mule to a buggy. While crossing the overhead bridge, in sight of his residence, a hand car propelled by a number of section hands of the railroad passed under him. The mule became frightened and ran away, turning in at the gate of Mr. Morrison's home at such a great rate of speed that he was thrown from his buggy, striking the ground with such force that he was fatally injured internally. His daughter, Mrs. Young, was the only person at his home. She ran to his assistance and made heroic efforts to alleviate his sufferings until his sons, who were in a nearby field, could come to his rescue. When they arrived Mr, Morrison was taken into the house, where he died a few minutes after a physician from the city arrived and about a half hour after the accident occurred.

Sheriff Morrison was 67 years of age, and a native of this county. When a very young man he enlisted in the Confederate army and served until the last year of the conflict when he lost his leg in the battle of Ream's Station, a few miles from Petersburg, Va.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 23.—After traveling all the way from Tryon, Polk county, to Raleigh Mrs. Lee Fisher found this morning that Governor Kitchin was out of the city and would not be back until Friday. She came to plead for a pardon for her husband who is serving a fifteen years sentence in the penitentiary for murder. She had left two young children in Tyron and could not wait here util the governor's return. Her friends advised her to go to Greensboro where the governor is today attending the State Normal commencement, and attempt to get a conference with him there. This she did, going to Greensboro on the early morning train. Mrs. Fisher's husband was sentenced seven years ago for killing R. W. Alston. A plea of self-defense was set up but the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter. Now all the members of the jury give Mrs. Fisher a recommendation for the pardon and the trial judge and the solicitor recommend pardon. It is a notable fact that Fisher is a nephew of State Senator L. C. Fisher and that Mrs. Fisher is a niece of J. S. Rhodes, who was a member of the lower house of the 1909 legislature.

Departure of Normal Students.

With the conclusion of commencement yesterday at noon the students of the Normal College are departing for their homes. So great were the numbers leaving yesterday that special cars were required to accommodate them in the journeys to the depot, and extra coaches to their final destinations. The station was crowded by the young women throughout the greater part of the day, and immediately preceding the arrival of trains this unusual appearance of the depot was especially attractive to the male population.

Duke Robins Goes to Thomasville.

Duke Robins, who has been assistant secretary of the North Carolina Trust Company, leaves today for Thomasville, where he has accepted a position with the Citizens' Insurance and Realty Company.

RED MEN IN ELIZABETH CITY HUNTING GROUNDS

Great Council Convened Tuesday Evening—Royal Welcome For Sons of The Forest—There Will be Much Entertainment Between Business Sessions.

Elizabeth City, N. C., May 23.—The eyes of all Red Men in North Carolina are turned toward Elizabeth City, the hunting grounds where many chieftains and braves will assemble in Great Council this evening, the chiefs and braves from every wigwam in the State being now enroute to attend the annual State gathering of the sons of the forest.

Great Chief of Records W. Ben Goodwin and his assistants have been working overtime to prepare for their coming and now all things are ready; and such a welcome as the visiting Red Men will receive will astonish them.

The Great Council convened this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the high school with the formal exercises. Hon. T. J. Markham delivered the annual address of welcome in behalf of the city. Hon. W. L. Cohoon delivered the address of welcome in behalf of the Pasquotank tribe of Red Men. Hon. W. J. Leary, Sr., of Edenton, made the response and Hon. D. E. Henderson, of New Bern, delivered an address on "The Brotherhood of Red Men." Past Great Incohonee John W. Cherry, of Norfolk, delivered an address, "The Great Council of Red Men, Its Wonderful Growth and Its Present Greatness."

There will be two business sessions on Wednesday, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. Wednesday night there will be a big torch light procession, in which the local tribe will parade in costumes. The parade will form at 8 o'clock in Matthews street and will parade Poindexter, Main, Road and Burgess streets and will return through Poindexter and Matthews streets to the public square. The chiefs will occupy automobiles in this parade.

After the parade a banquet will be served to the local tribe and the visiting Red Men by the Pocahontas.

On Thursday morning the concluding business session will be held and adjournment will be had in time for the visitors to leave on the afternoon trains.

Numerous other features of amusement and entertainment have been arranged for this occasion and the time of the visitors will be occupied from the minute that they arrive here until they take the train to go to their homes.

SENATOR POMERENE AFTER STANDARD OIL

Special to Telegram.

Washington, May 23.—The Senate without discussion passed Senator Pomerene's resolution reciting the Standard Oil decision of the Supreme Court and asking the Attorney General for information as to whether or not criminal prosecutions had been commenced against John D. Rockefeller and other Standard Oil officials. Senator Pomerene intends to introduce a resolution directing that the Standard officials be proceeded against under the criminal statutes.

Locusts Appear in Vicinity of Danville.

Danville, Va., May 23.—After an absence of seventeen years, the locusts are with us again, and in such numerous quantities that they cannot even be estimated. All who wish to hear the noise which is made by the locust, and which, it is said, if you ever hear you are not likely to soon forget, had better visit the woods this week, for after this week there will be very few to be seen.

The locusts last appeared in this section of the country about May the 10th, 1894. Quite remarkable is the fact that the last time the locusts were here the vast numbers were on the north side of the river, and about what is now opposite from Schoolfield. This time there seems to be very few on that side and the greater number are on the south side. The woods between Schoolfield and the Country Club are just swarming with the locusts. There are also a great many in the woods on Fall Creek hill and across the branch from the cemetery.

Greensboro has had the beginning, the middle and the end of the 1911 commencements and a flock of sweet girl graduates have been sent out into the world to lead the suffragist movement, to enter business, to become teachers—or marry—chiefly the latter.

The case of a wealthy young New Yorker who takes forty-five drinks per day and smokes as many cigarettes is attracting attention, but it will not attract attention for a great length of time. Even a wealthy New Yorker cannot stand that pace for many years.

Editor Josephus Daniels of Raleigh delivered an address to a class of young lady graduates at Greenville, taking as his subject, "The Rule of the People." The subject leads to the conclusion that Editor Daniels was laboring under the impression that the young ladies composing that class are suffragists.

Atlanta Journal boosts the "back to the farm" movement by calling attention to the fact that this is the open season for cotton chopping in the South. Wages are good and there is plenty of work. If the threatened closing of a large number of cotton mills materializes, there will be an abundance of cotton choppers if they can be gotten from the mills to the fields. It is said that shutdown of mills is impending and will probably materialize about June 1st.

Asheville opened the league baseball season with an attendance of about one thousand people. Last Saturday almost three times that number saw the game here. It is funny how all those towns claiming to be much larger than Greensboro can't show up with this place in baseball attendance. It means that Greensboro is bigger than it gets credit for being or that the people of this city all belong to the Amalgamated Order of Baseball Cranks.

The flies are undoubtedly thriving in Greensboro. They are numerous, large, active and always ready for business. It will require the combined efforts of all the people of the city to get rid of the fly nuisance. Let the city officials lead off with effective plan for killing off the flies, and most of the people will co-operate with them. Action by the Commissioners is imperative. In some sections of the city the flies are almost unbearable. There is a reason for this, which the officials can find if they seek for it.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch endorses Hon. Charles B. Aycock for the position of United States Senator from North Carolina. All the good things the Times-Dispatch says about Mr. Aycock are true and will be heartily approved by most of the people of North Carolina, but in the face of these facts he may not get the nomination. There will be four men in this contest and they are four of the ablest and strongest and most resourceful and most popular Democrats in the State. It is very difficult to predict eighteen months ahead of the election what the result of such a contest will be. It is safe to aver that it will be a battle of giants, but that is about all anyone can figure out of the situation at present.

ANGLING FOR ADMIRATION

(By VIRGINIA HARLAN.)

The girl who did not long to appear pretty and charming and altogether delightful in the eyes of mankind in general, and a few choice masculine specimens in particular, would be an unnatural little monster, who wouldn't deserve to own even a vestige of good looks—but, thank goodness, she doesn't exist!

To make the most of every good point she possesses, to love compliments and even a little flattery, are just lovable and normal traits of girlhood, and the girl who has them not must of necessity fail in what is, after all, the whole purpose of her being—the attraction of the man she loves and wants to marry.

Probably the last sentence will be strongly disapproved of by superior young damsels strong in their present heart-free condition, for theoretically, of course, no properly conducted fair one ever loves, or desires to marry any man, until by long and patient wooing he induces her to smile reluctantly upon his suit.

Theoretically!

But facts are stubborn things, and not lightly to be put aside, and the fact remains that nine times out of ten it is the lady's secret, carefully concealed, yet magnetic inclination that turns a casual admirer into a lover.

But it must be secret—a secret that perhaps she herself scarcely suspects, or, alas! for the chance of even a love story, to say nothing of the improbability of a happy ending.

There is no masculine privilege more jealously guarded by the unbeautiful sex than their supposed one of absolute freedom of choice.

Maybe, on the surface, her lures seem successful. She does receive flattery for which she openly asks, does win masculine admiration and gets smile for smile, but——

Alas! Alas! Such notice and flattery are but the result of man's gallantry which will by no means permit him to exhibit real—if unflattering—opinions of a woman, and the smile only betokens his own grateful vanity in being sought after by the fair one, instead of having to do the seeking!

Nevertheless, being a sporting individual, such gratifiction by no means is as lasting as the pleasure of the chase, and the angler, no matter how beautiful to look upon, will find herself speedily left for some maiden less lovely, but more attractive, because she does not seem to want to be!

If she were always really as worthy of boundless admiration as she thinks herself, perhaps it would not be quite so dreadful; but when natural, but perverted, craving asserts itself in a maid to whom Mother Nature has not been over lavish, good natured individuals of either sex are moved almost to tears.

Every man in her eyes is a possible suitor, and lover-like speeches are positively forced into his mouth, until, scared to death lest he say something there can be no unsaying, he beats a hasty terrified retreat.

There are very few things that are given as willingly if demanded as when unsought, and admiration is assuredly not one of them. The angler, however fair, rapidly bores her victim of both sexes to the point of exhaustion.

Perhaps one of the most exasperating methods of seeking admiration is to appear to deprecate obvilously valuable possessions.

Don't we all know the tiresome little goose who, patting a small head running over with curls, surveys our own too sleeky tresses, and murmurs sweetly:

"Oh, how I envy you your tidy head; mine looks dreadful, doesn't it?"

Or who has not longed to slap instead of flatteringly replying to the artful monkey who bewails the fact that she has a complexion of lilies and roses—"dreadfully insipid!" being her most insincere description instead of the "beautiful olive skin" of her vis-a-vis (otherwise shallow brickdust!)

The only weapon to successfully use against the lady is a quiet acquiescence, the one which will speedily put her to an angry flight. This is, however, the only weapon to be used by a fellow-woman. Men are helplessly forced into grudging praise!

The art that conceals art is the only art that will serve to win a man's admiration—supposing it is conscientiously being striven for; the only exception maybe being the artfully artless little lass who, head on one side, may dare to say: "Do you think this hat is pretty?"

A Don't for Married Ladies

(By JOHN WATSON WHYTE.)

It is a curious fact that wives take very little notice of the bachelor within their gates. He is just their husband's friend, equally useful to make up a four at whist, to complete a party for a dance, or to help wash up on the maid's Sunday out.

No woman will give herself away before another woman. Your charming sex, ladies, do not trust one another, and a lady who has been pecking her husband will turn all smiles and sweetness to greet a lady visitor.

But if the visitor happen to be the bachelor friend, the pecking goes on with unabated vigor, and if the bachelor does not mind his p's and q's he stands in danger of getting a dose out of the same bottle for himself.

So it happens that a bachelor sees quite a lot of married life, and, is therefore, in a sense, qualified to point out some of the rocks and shoals which beset the passage of calm, fair matrimony.

The don't I want to talk about, more especially for the young wife, is "don't take marriage too seriously."

Marriage, in fact, is far too serious a business to be taken too seriously. It is a heavy dish which must be spiced with good nature and a certain sense of humor to be palatable.

Wifely adoration is an admirable thing, and a very proper incense to burn before the altar of matrimony. Wifely solicitude is equally admirable, but it may degenerate into worry.

In short, don't expect too much of your husband. After all, he is only a sweetheart gone to seed.

You may think regretfully of the days when your lightest wish was law to him, when he worshiped the very ground you trod on, and when he wore your old glove next to his heart as a chest protector for months on end.

Your may look at the old ruffian as he sits there reading the baseball columns of the evening paper and think that he has tumbled badly off his pedestal, and that all his talk of everlasting love and stars was mere moonstruck flimflam. If you are very silly you may think that he has ceased to love you as he once used to.

Maybe you will be foolish enough to tell him so. Then you will make him cross.

He is expressing his love nowadays in a different way, that is all. Instead of bringing you flowers he brings you bread and butter; instead of admiring your new hat he pays for it like a man.

The days of moonshine and glamour are over, but if you have the eyes to read them aright there may be as much romance in a loaf of bread and a pound of butter as a bunch of violets.

So be gentle with your husband as he reads the baseball news. You may think that Cupid is dead, and you may be inclined to weep over the imaginary bier of your slain love, but Cupid is not dead. He is merely taking a well earned holiday and is reading the baseball news.

Only a very rich man can afford to have things given to him.

Advertising Talks

H. G. B.

A MERCHANT STATED THE OTHER DAY THAT HIS CHANCES FOR GETTING NEW CUSTOMERS WITHOUT ADVERTISING were jut as good as were the chances of the MERCHANT WHO ADVERTISED. It is useless to explain that this man has never done very much advertising. It is a matter of not knowing because he has not given advertising a trial. No progressive merchant today would support this non-advertising merchant in his contention. New people are coming into town all the time, and it is ridiculous to think that these people are going to get out a serch warrant as it were for the store handling the goods that they are in the market for. The merchant who does not advertise will possibly pick up a new customer occasionally and he will perhaps be able to control the patronage of some of his old customers who have been trading with him for a long time and who have formed the habit. THE UP-TO-DATE PROGRESSIVE MERCHANT will add from five to twenty-five new customers to his list to every one that the non-advertiser secures AND SOME OF THESE WILL BE DRAWN FROM THE NON-ADVERTISER. There are, of course, some very conservative people among buyers as well as merchants, but the majority of shoppers today prefer to patronize the merchant who they know is up-to-date. THERE IS NO BETTER EVIDENCE OF PROGRESSIVENESS AND UP-TO-DATENESS than is reflected by the advertising of the merchant. The buyers "who know" will eventually get their patronage to the merchant who is up-to-date.

IN GREENSBORO, THE TELEGRAM THE PAPER THAT GOES HOME, THAT PRINTS ALL THE NEWS THAT IS FIT TO PRINT WHILE THE BLOOM IS ON IT, IS THE BEST PLACE FOR YOU, MR. MERCHANT, TO SHOW YOUR PROGRESS.

Again Leads Off.

Again Guilford county is in the lead. At the request of the Guilford county farmers' union and the county school authorities the board of county commissioners has employed a registered physician to devote his entire time to the task of teaching the people of the county hygiene, and the best methods of living in accordance with such principles.

There is much valuable work for such an official to do in all our counties. Much, if not most, of the ecconomic loss and social distress arising from sickness, could be prevented if proper environment were provided and proper methods of living were followed. A trained physicion, tactful and alert, could do much toward accomplishing an awakening along this line.

Guilford has done well to set the pace. Let's see if some of the rest of us can't follow.—Kinston Free Press.

THE KITCHEN

Codfish Balls.

But and pick dry codfish in small pieces, free from bone and skin, and soak in cold water, while you peel and slice potatoes.

Next take two cupfuls of codfish to four cupfuls of potatoes. Put in cold water and boil until potatoes are tender, drain water off, and mash as for mashed potatoes; season with butter and pepper and beat well an egg before adding.

Drop from spoon into hot fat and fry a delicate brown. Garnish with lettuce or parsley. They are nice and light, and can be prepared in twenty minutes. This quantity will serve four persons.

Making Pastry.

The fat should be lightly but very thoroughly rubbed in with the tips of the fingers, never with the palms of the hands.

Add the water gradually but quickly to prevent hard lumps from forming, and to keep the consistency of the whole mass uniform.

Always use a knife for mixing, it being so much cooler than the hand. They should never be rolled backwards and forwards, but in short forward rolls, lifting the rolling pin between the rolls. Puff paste is allowed to stand between the turns in order that the butter may harden, and thus keep the layers of pastry and butter separate.

Paste to which baking powder has been added should be put into the oven speedily, otherwise some of the effect of the baking powder i s wasted.

Chocolate Layer Cake.

Beat to a cream half a cupful of butter and a cupful of sugar. When this is light, beat in, a little at a time, half a cupful of milk and a teaspoonful of vanilla; beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth. Sift together a teaspoonful of baking powder and two scant cupfuls of pastry flower and the whites of eggs alternately into the mixture.

Have three deep cake tins well buttered and spread two-thirds of the batter in two of them. Into the remaining batter, stir an ounce of chocolate, melted, and spread on the third plate. Bake in a moderate oven for about twenty-five minutes. Put one of the white layers on plate and spread with white icing. Put the dark cake on this one, spread with icing; on this put the third cake and spread with either white or chocolate icing.

Public Drinking Cup.

One who must sip unboiled water from a public drinking cup or die of thirst should by all means choose the lesser evil.

But because the thirsty one must live is no reason why he should bite a chunk out of the glass or chew on the edge of the cup as though it were a biscuit.

There is a better way. The drinker, instead of making a funnel of himself, may foil the germs if he will place the edge of the cup against his chin, then bend his proud neck to meet the water halfway and quaff without touching his lips to the cup. Then he may wipe off his chin and be on his way.

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

No, Never. Its foolish to fear a fancied evil, when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, bayous, and lowlands. These are the malaria germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the the bones and muscles and may induce deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out these vicious germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy only. 50c at Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

The Difference.

"The difference between a girl and a widow?"

"Yes. What is it?"

"A widow doesn't want a man to kiss her."

"No?"

"No. She just wants him to want to kiss her."

There are Liver Syrups, Liver Pills and Dry Regulators, all too drastic and disagreeable and, while may give quick relief from one trouble, get you into worse often. Vick's Little Liver Pills are made right and always produce curative effect and have no taste—far superior to calomel for children and have no equal as Tonic Laxative.

WARNING TO RAILROAD MEN.

E. S. Bacon, 11 Bast St., Bath, Me., sends out this warning to railroad men: "As conductor on the railroad, my work caused a chronic inflamation of the kidneys, and I was miserable and all played out. A friend advised Foley Kidney Pills and from the day I commenced taking them, I began to regain my strength. The inflammation cleared and I am far better than I have been for twenty years. The weakness and dizzy spells are a thing of the past and I highly recommend Foley Kidney Pills."

"Oh, yes," Mrs. Smith told us, "my husband is an enthusiastic archaeologist. And I never knew it till yesterday. I found in his desk some queer-looking tickets with the inscription, 'Mudhorse, 8 to 1.' And when I asked him what they were, he explained to me that they were relics of a lost race. Isn't it interesting?"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

PROGRESS BEING MADE IN THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE PROHIBITION LAW.

To the Friends of Good Government:

The blind tigers over the State are beginning to appreciate the fact that the prohibition law must be obeyed. The last thirty days has brought revelations that have opened the eyes of these lawless characters. Good news is coming to our office from all parts of the State by letter, as well as public print, of the prosecution of these violators, and we note with pleasure that the judgment is generally a sentence to the roads.

The citizens of North Carolina are fairly conversant with the prosecution now going on in Durham. A few days ago we received from Mr. Harris, clerk of the Recorder's court of Durham, an official list of blind tigers convicted, with their sentences, and we find that during the month of April in the Recorder's court there were forty-nine convictions, for which Judge Sykes gave an aggregate road sentence of twenty-five years. With few exceptions these defendants appealed to the Superior court and their cases will most likely be tried at the May term of court.

That the people of the city and community are back of this movement is evidenced by the fact that the strong Law and Order League has been organized with Mr. Geo. W. Watts as president; Jas. H. Southgate, vice-president and H. N. Snow, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee is composed of Gen. J. S. Carr, chairman; Messrs. B. N. Duke, T. B. Fuller, Prof. R. L. Flowers, Rev. E. R. Leyburn, I. F. Hill, C. W. Toms, J. D. Pridgeon, W. A. Erwin, R. H. Riggsbee and Rev. W. C. Barrett. These men are among the most prominent in ecclesiastical, commercial and financial affairs in the city, and it is safe to say that the membership of this organization is composed of the most prominent of church and State living in Durham. The only purpose of this organization is to see that the laws, written on the statute books are enforced. Concerning this organization: "It is our purpose to back up the authorities in the prosecution of all law breakers and strive to purge our town of such characters."

The cause of good government has also just scored a great victory in Wilmington. It is believed by many that more liquor lawlessness has abounded there for the past twelve months than any other place in the State. Official investigations by Mayor McRae had revealed a startling state of affairs, and there is no wonder that there was a purpose on the part of good citizens to displace their former method of government with the commission form and also to try a new set of officials. These five commissioners were elected on Monday, May 1st and took charge of affairs on May 6th. The Good Government League that was organized in the beginning of the year has been constantly at work, and it is due to their leadership and efforts that the changed situation now prevails in Wilmington. A leading wholesale merchant of that town speaks of the election as a "signal victory for good government." He says: "We won three representatives out of five and the other two are good men, very popular and men of ability. We will make some of these blind tigers, if not all of them, walk the plank." Another prominent citizen writes: "We trust the next two years will bring Wilmington to the front in such a manner as will command respect of the whole State."

From one of the best towns in Piedmont, N. C., we received a communication, dated May 2nd, from one of the commissioners elect in which he says: "Our town voted a majority for dry commissioners yesterday and we expect to see that the prohibition laws are enforced during the next two years, and I would like to have your assistance in this work." When our citizens are elected officers on the platform of law enforcement, and when these officers appreciate the fact that the Law and Order League, Good Government Leagues and the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League are all organized for the purpose of assisting them in doing their work, it indicates a better day ahead and gives assurance that blind tigerism in the State will be largely reduced.

The town of Hendersonville has also lately come in for much newspaper advertising and comment because of the fact that the Law and Order League and good citizens of that beautiful mountain town have determined that liquor lawlessness must cease, and their efforts are being rewarded.

Since the local Buncombe county law has become effective, liquor lawlessness has very largely decreased in Asheville, and the officers and best citizens are using it to still further reduce this crime. Mr. Wiley Black of blind tiger fame is again in the lime light, and it does not yet appear what he shall be. The grand jury quite recently has been making close investigations and it appears that the road forces will be increased shortly.

In the city of New Bern, good results have been secured in the past sixty days and the forces for good government are much encouraged. One of the wealthy men of that town writes me in speaking of the blind tigers: "We will drive them from our midst." The newspaper reports of the first of the month informs us that Mr. B. F. Sanders of Newport, has just been convicted in the Federal court there for retailing and was given a sentence of one year in the penitentiary and a fine of $100. Sometime ago in conversation with a prominent lawyer of that district, he told me that he considered Mr. Sanders the worst criminal in the district.

Let this work continue and ere long the cry that "Prohibition don't prohibit" will be changed to "Officers and citizens do prohibit." One of the half dozen most prominent characters in our campaign for State-wide prohibition writes me under date of April 19th: "Do all you can to form Law and Order Leagues to enforce the prohibition laws and prohibition has come to stay in North Carolina." Let all the believers in good government take courage and press on—the victory is ours.

Supt., N. C. Anti-Saloon League.

ANCIENT CUSTOM IN MANCHE

Queer Procession That Marks Completion of Harvest and Repast That Follows It.

An interesting ancient custom is observed in Manche at the harvest time. When the work is on the point of completion a sheaf of honor is made and decorated with flowers, which the farmer himself carries in procession, surrounded by the harvesters. Two of the party, under the pretext of sweeping the way, raise a cloud of dust. If in the progress the procession meets a stranger the girls offer him some corn from a pewter plate. If he accepts and makes them a small monetary present, the girls kiss him.

But the principal ceremony is reserved for the repast, in which curds occupy a prominent place. When this part of the menu is reached the girls each choose one of the young harvestmen and endeavor to force him to take a spoonful. If the attempt is a success, it is taken as an offer of marriage on the man's part.—London Globe.

CRIME AMONG FRENCH YOUTH

Most of the Murders and Assaults Committed by Members of the Rising Generation.

There is considerable lamentation in France over the fact that most of the murders and dangerous assaults which are chronicled in the columns devoted to crime are committed by members of the rising generation, young people whose ages vary from 15 to 21. Now a small boy, no more than ten years of age, has suddenly emerged from obscurity as the ringleader of a gang of thieves. This anything but promising child had already been brought before the police commissary of the neighboring township in which he dwells, on a charge of appropriating other people's property, but in consideration of his youthfulness he was sent back to his parents. The lesson was lost on him, however, as a few days later he organized a gang which promptly set to work with a will. Goods disposed for sale outside of shops in that township disappeared as if by magic, and every hour of the day one tradesman or another was hurrying to the police commissary with a woeful face to report his losses. — Paris Correspondence London Telegraph.

Warship as Mussel Bed.

The cruiser Champion, training ship for the second class stokers at Chatham, has just been taken into dry dock after lying seven years in the Medway. The Champion's bottom was found to be covered with an immense accumulation of barnacles and weeds. It is estimated that 40 tons of mussels alone have been got off.—London Daily Graphic.

LOCAL PRIDE IS HER MANIA

Woman From Iceland Even Asserts Fishermen There Bait Their Hooks With Anesthetics.

Local pride becomes easily a matter of mania and the further and more primitive the locality the greater the pride. A woman from Iceland, the wife of a well-known Icelandic scholar, was spending the winter in New York. Local pride gave her no rest. She held that day lost in which she had not pointed out to some one something that was better done in Iceland than in the States. One evening while she was dining with a friend the conversation turned upon the work of the S. P. C. A.

"In Iceland," said the victim of local pride, "we have no need of humanitarian societies. Cruelty is unknown among us. We are naturally a race of humanitarians."

"You are also great fishermen, are you not?" inquired a second guest.

"Oh, certainly," she cried. "Great fishermen! You have no such expert fishermen in the States."

"But what a cruel sport for an island full of humanitarians!" cried the second guest.

"No, indeed!" explained the devoted creature without winking. "No, indeed. In Iceland our fishermen all bait their hook with anesthetics."—New York Sun.

THIS THE WIDOW REJECTED

Refused to Receive "One Housewife" Listed in Effects Left by Her Soldier Husband.

The regulation which provides that upon the death of a soldier a complete inventory of his effects shall be sent to his next of kin gave rise to an amusing incident at one of our southwestern army posts recently.

Private Blank, recently returned from a two years' tour of duty in the Philippines, having departed this life, the officer in charge forwarded to his wife in a small Ohio town an itemized list of the property of the deceased, with a request that she check off the articles that she desired so that the balance could be sold. In due time the list was returned, asking that all the articles except the one erased be forwarded. That one item had been so scratched, erased and blotted out that it was entirely obliterated. The officer's curiosity was aroused, so he referred to a carbon copy, whereupon he discovered that the indignant widow had no desire to harbor her late husband's one housewife. —Lippincott's.

Nobody believes in lying. Perhaps that's the reason why so many like to experiment with it.

Snobbery to the Rear.

The new superintendent has taken charge of the Annapolis Academy, and it is presumed that snobbery will now modestly occupy one of the back benches for a time.—Indianapolis News.

Facts About Java.

Java is an island in the Malay archipelago, the principal seat of the Dutch power in the east, and, after Sumatra and Borneo, the largest of the Sunda group. It is 630 miles long by 35 to 120 miles broad, and has a population of about thirty million. The chief articles of export include sugar, coffee, tea, rice and tobacco.

A Speaking Timepiece.

"The clock strikes one, we take no note of time," sang Young in his "Night Thoughts." Were Young living today he would get much more poetry from the speaking than from the striking timepiece. The new "time-stating clock," invented in Germany, announces the hours and quarters in "an agreeable voice." Its wheels actuate a stout belt, which runs over a roll connected with a sounding box. Upon this belt, or rather film, the hours, which have been recorded by a phonograph, are impressed by galvanization on a copper plate. The mechanism which moves the hands is connected with the speaking device, and this with a funnel which re-enforces the sound and projects it outward through a finely grated opening attached to the narrow side of the clock. At night a touch on a lever reduces the clock to silence. But if one wakes and wishes to know the hour without striking a light, an easily found button is pressed and the clock immediately states the time. The speech film is practically indestructible and occupies very little space since because of its elasticity it may be wound upon a very small roller.

Just Cause for Anger.

"Mrs. Tinmore is so angry with her dentist she vows she will never pay his bill," says the neighbor.

"Why in the world?" asks the caller.

"Well, she got him to put in a bridge for her, and she complained to him that it did not feel right, but he said it was all right and would not be noticed when she got used to it; and so she kept it, of course, although it seemed to make it hard for her to talk—kind of made her voice thick, you know. And yesterday she called up Mr. Tinmore and asked him to bring home some shoes and shirts for their little boys, and Mr. Tinmore kept her repeating it over and over to him the longest time, until he thought he knew what she wanted. And what do you suppose he brought home? A bottle of soothing sirup!"—Judge.

Maine's Deserted Villages.

Maine has had her deserted farms and now and then one can find her deserted villages. Such a one is Welchville, in the town and county of Oxford, where once the pulse of machinery kept life beating fast in a thriving little community. To day the population is scattering, on the farms thereabouts chiefly, while the change in the value of the property is indicated by the story recently related of the sale of a 2½-story house for $175, which was worth $1,500 75 years ago. But the number of such towns is small. Maine is building up fast. Her deserted farms are being taken up, sometimes by progressive young farmers, and again by summer people, and the deserted Maine villages promised a new lease of life.

Good Excuse.

"Why ain't you at school, little boy?"

"I stayed away on account of sickness."

"Who is sick?"

"The truant officer."—Suburban Life.

House Built From One Tree.

The town of Elma, Wash., in the midst of the great fir timber belt on the west slope of the Cascade mountains presents a unique feature in the form of a two-story house, containing 14 rooms, built entirely of the timber from a single fir.

This tree was a giant Douglas fir, and was felled west of Elma. It was wonderfully straight, and when scaled was found to contain 40,000 feet of serviceable timber. The tree was cut into six logs, the first or butt being 28 feet in length. Inside the bark the stump measured seven feet and nine inches in diameter. The distance to the first limb of this tree was 100 feet, and the total height of the tree was over 300 feet.

At the standard then prevailing—$25 a thousand—the lumber in this tree was worth more than $1,000.—Harper's Weekly.

Washing and Microbes.

Sir Almroth Wright in a recent London lecture said: "There is a belief that by washing people wash off the microbes. We do take off a certain amount of microbes, but we also destroy the protective skin which is all round our bodies like the tiles of a house. When one has a horny hand no microbe can ever get near the skin. A great deal of washing increases the microbes of the skin, so I do not think cleanliness is to be recommended as a hygienic method." And this from the land of the morning cold tub.

Merely a coincidence is what the plagiarist calls it.

SAVING HER RECORD

If there is anything Mrs. Jenkinson prides herself on it is being on time. In fact, her superhuman punctuality becomes as intolerable at times as the moral courage of the person who takes cold plunges in the morning and boasts of the fact. Her satisfaction rises to its sublimest height when she can show off before some unfortunate mortal who is invariably late.

Therefore she beamed condescendingly upon Mrs. Loffett and said: "Oh, cer—tainly, I'll be able to meet you at the State street entrance of Longcloth's at 12:30. It will be perfectly easy!"

"Well, I didn't know," apologized Mrs. Loffett. "There are always so many things to do around the house mornings that it's hard—"

"Not if you use the proper system," interrupted Mrs. Jenkinson firmly.

The Jenkinsons had just taken a small flat after a long siege of boarding and were not entirely adjusted. The worst trouble was that there were four bells which rang and Mrs. Jenkinson's ear had not had time to be trained to the difference between them. When one rang she invariably answered all four, as always it was the last one she answered. This gave her plenty of exercise.

The morning she was to meet Mrs. Loffett at 12:30 Mrs. Jenkinson was aroused from a late slumber by the ringing of a bell. She sprang up blinking and puzzled and then consciousness came.

"My packages from downtown!" she murmured. "The back door bell, of course!"

Slipping into a dressing gown, she rushed to the back door. There was nobody there. She opened the front door with the same results. Then she attacked the speaking tube leading to the front entrance downstairs. There was no response to her hellos.

"Oh!" she said shortly a few seconds later, as she gazed from the front window where she had wandered and got a view of the postman sigzagging across the street below. "It was his ring! I might have known!"

Mrs. Jenkinson proceeded to turn the faucets in the bathtub and let it fill with water. As she splashed a bell rang. "My goodness!" she moaned. It rang again peremptorily, and finally some one pounded on the front door.

"Well, you just pound!" she muttered, hysterically. "The idea!"

A little later she opened the door and stared upon the vacant hall searching for a clue. There was no clue.

"Who on earth could that have been?" she asked herself. "Mercy—it's after ten o'clock!"

As she was making coffee a bell rang and it sounded like the one downstairs. When she had shrieked "hello" into the tube till her throat hurt it rang again and some one pounded on the back door. The icy and infuriated individual who stood there snorted as he brushed by her.

"Telephone c'llection," he explained briefly. "I climbed three flights of front stairs once this morning an' now I've climbed three flights of back ones and it's no fun, I can tell you!

Mrs. Jenkinson, wildly searching for her purse, found it at last in the shoe bag, where she had hidden it. Her head was thumping as she ushered out the telephone man and hurried back to her coffee. It had boiled over. She dropped the toast she was making to answer the next bell.

"Dress from the cleaner's for Smith," announced a voice through the tube.

"Smiths don't live here," called back Mrs. Jenkinson. Presently there was a ring at the front door and she found a boy holding out the cleaner's box.

"It isn't mine," insisted Mrs. Jenkinson.

The boy regarded her reproachfully. "This is the number an' I've climbed three flights of stairs an' it's two-fifty."

"Take it away!" ordered Mrs. Jenkinson, indignantly. "I don't know anything about it!" She banged the door on the boy's protests and tore to the kitchen, which was full of smoke. The toast was cinders.

"I'd—I'd like to cry!" moaned Mrs. Jenkinson.

She discarded her kimono and started to dress for downtown, accelerated by the last glance at the clock, which said 11:15. She had 45 minutes before the suburban train was due. Things hid themselves with that maddening ingenuity they always develop when one is in a hurry. In ten minutes the bedroom and closet looked like Culebra cut in the process of excavation. Then the telephone rang.

She missed her train and raged for 20 minutes waiting for the next one. When, breathless and disheveled, she dashed into the entrance to Longcloth's, she was trying to conceal her humiliation. To be late with Alice Loffett was intolerable. To her unbelievable amazement, Mrs. Loffett was not waiting with triumph in her eyes, and during the ensuing 15 minutes Mrs. Jenkinson repaired damages to her toilet.

"Oh," cried Mrs. Loffett, rushing up at last, "I'm so sorry! Have you been waiting all this time?"

The glance Mrs. Jenkinson turned upon her would have made her fortune on the stage. It was calm, reproachful, condescending and patient.

"Oh," said Mrs. Jenkinson without the quiver of an eyelash, "one gets used to waiting when one is systematic."

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, La., May 23.—Outside of the defense in the summer positions which alternated on some short covering or bull support, showing rapid, spasmodic upturns, there is at present no trading of consequence in the markets. New crops are pretty well sold by speculation, while consumers have bought the contracts and shorts are waiting on the bureau report of June 2nd. for a favorable result.

Recent rains in the central States and Georgia have improved the outlook and there is now only the drought in Oklahoma and the Carolinas considered as worthy of any concern by the short side. The map shows fair weather over the entire central and Western belt and continued fair and warmer weather is indicated for this part of the belt. Alabama, East Tennessee and Georgia had more rain over night and cloudy, showery weather is promised there. There were some showers in the Northwestern corner of the Carolinas but the greater part of those States has not yet had the needed rains.

Liverpool is waiting, also. Futures and spots steady but inactive. Our market opened today a few points lower on old crops but soon recovered and dragged along for two hours around last night's closing figures for old crops and new crops without any activity either way. Feeling on new crops is bearish owing to good crop accounts and the short interest for small accounts is in a small way increased daily.

Southern Mills Preparing to Close.

Journal of Commerce—Southern mills have begun notifying their agents of intention to close during the summer, and with these notifications have been instructions to mark up goods and await further advices. It is very clear the point has been reached in the manufacturing situation where mills must close or buy cotton at prices that will show further great losses.

NORTH STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 23.—The president and faculty of Meredith College have issued invitations for a reception to be given next Tuesday evening, May 30, in honor of Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, ex-secretary of the treasury of the United States, who will be here to take part in the Meredith commencement that will be in progress next week.

In the federal court this forenoon the grand jury was empanelled and the charge by Judge Connor delivered. There was several submissions notable among which was a plea of guilty by Taylor Ritter and his three sons of Moore county, held for blockading. The father was saddled with $200 fine and costs in his case and the three sons were each allowed to go on payment of costs. However all four were put under bond to appear at the May term of court for three years and show good behavior so far as observance of Uncle Sam's revenue laws is concerned.

In addition to getting new instruments from the War Department, the bands of the three regiments of North Carolina National Guard are getting new full dress uniforms. The new uniforms for the First Regiment band at Asheville were packed for shipment today.

Two charters were issued today. One was to The Forsyth Club, of Winston-Salem, capital $500 subscribed by L. H. Davis and others and $5,000 authorized, the purpose being the social pleasure of members. The other was to the Edenton Machine & Supply Co., capital $25,000 authorized and $1,500 subscribed by J. A. Mitchiner and others.

Three times in the State Supreme Court on appeal and one course through the United States district, circuit and the supreme courts is the remarkable record of the case of Westfeldt vs. Adams that is now pending in the State Supreme court again under a motion by counsel for the defendant to dismiss the appeal for defects in preparation of the appeal. In the first trial below in Swain county Westfeldt obtained verdict. There was new trial and removal to Haywood county with verdict again for Westfeldt, then the legal fight led through the United States courts and then to a third state court trial. This was last October in Haywood county, the defendant Adams obtaining his first verdict. It is from this that counsel for Westfeldt appealed with the hearing now pending. Something like a million dollars of copper mining property in Swain county is involved. The litigation grew out of conflicting land grants obtained in the division of the Cherokee country that included the part of Swain county in which the mining property is situated.

Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

There will be a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night in the assembly room of the body in the McAdoo building, held for the purpose of hearing reports from the automobile reliability run to Henderson and elsewhere. Members of the Chamber's railroad committee will report on the trip and on the progress of the movement to build the Greensboro and Roxboro railroad. Every member of the body and all business men and citizens of the city interested in the railroad proposition are urged to be present at this meeting.

Furniture Manufacturers Meet Today.

High Point, May 23.—The furniture manufacturers of the State will move on Lenoir tomorrow, the occasion being a meeting of the North Carolina Case Workers Association. There will be the largest attendance from High Point at any recent meeting of the Association.

After the meeting of the Association the citizens of Lenoir will take the party to Blowing Rock for a day or so. They have a pleasant trip before them, penetrating into the most beautiful mountain section in America.

To Stop Nosebleed.

One of the commonest complaints among children is bleeding of the nose, and the remedies to be applied are of the simplest. A small wad of white paper inserted under the tongue or under the upper lip is generally all that is needed to stop an ordinary nosebleed, although pads of cotton dipped in ice water and placed at the back of the neck is the standby of many mothers.

cial training that will enable them as teachers and women citizens to become useful forces in the development of the communties in which they may be called to live and to labor. By the publication of bulletins it is the hope of the college to occupy in the future a new field of endeavor. I have been convinced for some time that the different members of the faculty could render substantial service to the citizens of the State if some means of communication between the two could be established. With the purpose, therefore, of establishing a point of contact, we shall issue from time to time bulletins which will give the people the benefit of some of the best things of the college.

During the past year the members of the faculty have given their best thought to working out a strong course in Home Economics. For the past nineteen years the college has offered strong courses in this subject. Six years ago a systematic course of instruction was offered for training young women to supervise and teach in the schools of the State the elementary principles of cooking, sewing, and sanitation, and other subjects pertinent to home-making and home-keeping. At that time the demand for teachers in this subject was limited and hence only a few students took advantage of the opportunity thus offered. A change, however, has taken place in the State and vocational studies are finding a place in the curricula of our high schools—agriculture for boys, and cooking and sewing for girls. I feel that it is the duty of this college to meet the changed conditions by properly preparing young women to teach the new subjects offered in our schools. To meet this demand efficiently, there will be offered next fall a comprehensive course in Home Economics. It will, in no sense, be inferior to the other courses of instruction. and the student completing the work satisfactorily will be granted one of the usual college degrees. Beginning, therefore, with the session of 1911-1912, there will be open to all students in the college the courses heretofore offered in cooking, sewing, home decoration, etc., and, in addition, a well planned course in Home Economics intended to prepare young women to supervise and teach this subject in the secondary schools of the State.

The Board of Directors at its meeting yesterday decided to keep the institution open during the summer months. They feel that the State has too much money invested in the plant to permit it to lie idle for nearly one-third of the year. Beginning with the summer of 1912, it is our intention to offer instruction in the regular college courses, to offer a strong course in teacher training, and, also, in home-making and home-keeping. These are the three lines of work now contemplated, but, with the development of the plan, new features will doubtless be added from year to year.

Through the generosity of the Southern Education Board, the College placed a supervisor of elementary schools in Forsyth county last fall. This supervisor did work under the direction of the County Board of Education and of the county superintendent of education. It was our hope to prove by this experiment that it would be a good investment if the larger counties, at least, would employ strong, well-trained women to supplement and make more effective the work now being done by the county superintendents. If this work should be thoroughly developed it would open a larger field of service to our women teachers.

There are so many other duties required of the county superintendent that it is not possible for him to keep in close touch with every phase of the work. With the assistance, however, that could be rendered by a supervisor of elementary schools, he could more thoroughly organize the professional side of the system and thus conduct in connection with his office a thorough teacher-training department. In my judgment, the adoption of this plan of more close supervision of our elementary schools would be a long step forward in the development of North Carolina educationally.

The college was also substantially aided by having a representative working in the rural schools of the State. We were thus brought in closer touch with the problem of rural education and, hence, it will be possible for us to work more intelligently and effectively in our efforts to render service to these schools. We have had the sympathetic co-operation of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction both in the inauguration of this work and in devising plans for its development.

Radium Spray is not poison.

Emotion and Conduct.

Emotion has no value in the Christian system save as it is connected with right conduct. It is the bud, not the flower, and is of no value until it expands into the flower. Every religious sentiment, every act of devotion which does not produce a corresponding elevation of life, is worse than useless; it is absolutely pernicious, because it ministers to self-deception, and tends to lower the tone of personal morals.—Murray.

Tenement House.

Although there are many tenements under one roof, it is correct to speak of the house in the singular, as "tenement house," and it is equally right to mention the several "tenements" in the house. Broadly a tenement house is one divided into a number of separate habitations, so that many families may have their different homes in one house.

Matter Quickly Settled.

In an English opera company, formed for the summer months, it was found that the tenors were too light for the rest of the chorus. The manager protested that there were voices enough, and the leading tenor was questioned why he did not sing with more force. His answer to the remonstrances of the manager was: "I am paid summer wages, and I refuse to sing anything but my summer voice." The engagement of the tenor and his summer voice came to a speedy termination.

Bound to Make a Kick.

The fussy guest looked over the order that had been served him, and then summoned the waiter. "Look here!" he exclaimed. "You have brought me coffee. Did I order coffee?" "No, sir. That isn't coffee, sir—it's tea." "Are you sure that's tea?" "Absolutely, sir." "Well, I ordered cocoa!"

Ostrich Feathers Not Pulled.

It is a mistaken popular impression that ostrich feathers are pulled. This is wrong. The plumes are cut about every eight months or so, and a keen edged knife is used in the operation. After the cutting the stumps lose life, wither and fall out.

Italy's Main Imports.

Italy's principal imports are cereals, raw cotton, coal, machinery, lumber, raw silk, hides, horses, wool and hair, iron, mineral oil, seeds, coffee, colors and varnishes, copper, jute, mother of pearl, nitrate of soda, paraffin, phosphates, grease, precious stones, wood pulp, tobacco, railway cars, tin, sulphate of copper and sulphate of ammonia.

Put Confidence in Nurse.

Very small experience of practice is needed to show that in serious illness the patient's friends generally ask the nurse if she thinks the doctor "really understands the case," and they are much influenced by her opinion and the manner in which she gives it.—London Hospital.

Humane Mistress.

"And are you still rejoicing in that splendid cook, Mrs. Malaprop?" inquired the caller. "Well, we are and we ain't," said Mrs. Malaprop. "The fact is Mary was so completely procrastinated by the work of my household that I've given her a three weeks' vaccination. I was afraid if I didn't she would be invalidated termagantly."—Harper's Weekly.

His Hard Lot.

"My lot is a hard one!" he muttered, and his face wore a look of despair; too true were the words that he uttered, as he paused with his spade in the air. He'd thought to make garden that day and his pulses with pleasure had fluttered; but he struck solid rock, and "I say, my lot is a hard one," he muttered.

GLASSES OF INDUSTRIAL LEADERS ROSE COLORED

They Take Cheerful View of Business Conditions —Schwab And Guggenheim Are Optimistic—Industrial News From Metropolis.

(By PRESTON C. ADAMS.)
Special to Telegram.

New York, May 22.—Leaders of industry continue to look at conditions through rosy spectacles and if they have any misgivings as to the outlook keep their forebodings to themselves. Not only is the situation to their minds satisfactory here, but abroad as well. For instance, Charles M. Schwab, before his departure for an European trip had this to say:

"You will recall that there was considerable grumbling last year over poor steel conditions, but at the end of the year the report of the various steel companies showed in nearly every case the second best year in history. Some people are complaining now, but production for the last several months has not been poor, an evidence of which is found in iron production, which has been running at the rate of close to 25,000,000 tons a year.

"For several weeks there was a falling off in new business, but lately the railroads and certain other consumers of steel have shown more of a disposition to enter the market. I believe the next turn will be for the better. Money is easy, and there is plenty of it awaiting investment. The demand for high-grade bonds is pronounced. The country is trying to forget politics and business interests in general seem to be more hopeful. There has been better buying of steel by the railroads of late. The railroads have been much of a factor in steel for a year or more past, and it would not surprise me in the least to find them in the market as large buyers before a great while. There has been more or less pessimistic talk on the steel industry since the first of last year, and I believe it is about time to become a little optimistic. A good foundation has already been laid for a business revival."

Then Isaac Guggenhein on his return from abroad says:

"In England business is good and in Germany exceptionally good. I found that Germany is buying more copper than ever before. This is due to the great expansion of business that is taking place there, and T. De Witt Cuyler, a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad has been away since January, says:

"Sentiment toward American securities seems to be good abroad and the general feeling, excellent. The big Supreme Court decisions are anxiously awaiting financial interests, although I do not think they are having a very deterrent effect on purchases of our securities.

"Things here I believe are very sound and the railroads stronger than ever despite the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. These are simply typical."

Holders in stock and American Mines and metallurgical works found the first four months of this year unusually profitable ones, reports to the mining world showing that 110 mines and works distributed $33,134,000 among their share holders.

While largely depending upon the profits of some of the above companies for their dividends, the declarations of the seven securities-holding corporations can be added to the total of the four months, $5,049,20—making a grand total of $38,-184,465.

In classifying the dividend payers of 1911 the bold-silver-lead-zinc producers, number 80, lead with $14,924,360. Since incorporation, however, they rank a poor second to the coppers, having to their credit $190,265,846 while the 23 coppers have disbursed $376,414,731. equivalent to 187 per cent on the issued capital, as compared with 87 percent on the former.

Investors can find no asylum free from legislative harassment. When Germany applied the screws to taxpayers loud complaints were heard that investors there would send their money out of the country. Then the French government passed measures not at all to the liking of capital, and the same outcry was raised. In the United States our financiers have stormed for several years against the attacks of the Administration. But now comes the British Government with the most partenalistic piece of legislation ever essayed by any Government. Lloyd George, the man who precipitated the last general election by his budget, has brought forward a scheme to insure all workers between the ages of sixteen and sixty-five against sickness, while the principal of insurance against unemployment is to be introduced into the engineering and building trades as experiment, with a view of extending the plan to other industries. Not only so, but the Government is to spend millions is waging war against consumption. All this on top of old age pensions means that the taxpayers will have to bear very heavy burdens. Capital may fret and fume, but wither can it flee for protection?

Notwithstanding all their enormous surpluses, the largest financial institutions of New York are not conceding one jot in their demands for the highest grade of collateral. Nor will they consider for a moment paper not of the very highest grade. Nine institutions out of ten would rather lend money on stock Exchange collateral at 3 percent than release funds on inactive security at a much higher rate. Country banks are acting with similar conservation. Every one has taken in a sail lest a squall arise when more Supreme Court decisions are rendered. It is this very action that tends to swell the surplus reserves carried by banks and trust companies.

One of the secret grievances of shippers against railroads has been said to be that shippers are unable to bargain and haggle for their transportation, as they did when there existed competition, and that passes and other favors have disappeared. A way has been found to overcome theis feeling. It is notorious that when a man who has ridden on passes all his life is deprived of them he feels that he is deprived of something that belongs to him; he will pay to ride on another than the one on which he has been traveling free. It becomes the business of railroad managers to iron out these kinks in human nature. In the West the railroads are conducting what they call "Get Acquainted" trips. All the local officers of the railroad and such eminent persons as can be induced to go along get aboard a specially luxurious train and start over the line. They stop at every little place, admire the crops, the improvements, and the babies, offer helpful advice, dine badly at the clubs, and tell how impossible it would be for a railroad to survive its shippers. The general traffic manager wishes to be called by his first name and to be communicated with on any small pretext. Requests for new stations are gracefully received. A new station there shall be, so soon as the Interstate Commerce Commision will allow the roads to make a little money and the United States Supreme Court decides the Trust cases

There is more talk than action in Paris regarding the listing of American securities. Almost every week a report is gravely published that such and such stock is about to be elevated to the parquet, but so far thes reports have seldom been followed by action. Atchison, according to statements widely published, is al ready to receive this honor, $10,000,000 having been deposited in France against the necessary savings' receipts. Then it was said circumstantially that American Telephone shares are in line for similar promotion, but further developments are awaited. Perhaps President Vail gave the movement a boost while he was abroad. The European investor is not at the moment buying many American securities. London has taken large stocks of New York revenue warrants at 3 per cent or a trifle better—an attractive deal in a 2 1-8 per cent discount market. The Bank of England was again allowed to take most of the new gold offered in London, India being the only other buyer. Money in London was obtained at the low figure of 1 -12 per cent. In Berlin discounts remained at 2 7-8 per cent, but money declined to 3 per cent. In our own money market rates are very easy.

IT MADE A DIFFERENCE

"Have you been out in the front yard this afternoon?"

"No, why?"

"Oh, just because the contents of the flower beds have been scratched out, all over the walks. That's why!"

"Well, good gracious! I hope you don't think for a minute that I did it. I guess if you had supper to get and a hat to trim and a dress to turn you would realize that you had something else to do than scratch out flower beds, or to watch them, either, for that matter. I—"

"No one has accused you of doing it, has there?"

"Well, from the way you began the very moment you got in the house, one would think—"

"I don't suppose you realize that I spent 85 cents for the flower seed to go in those gardens, and now I'll bet there isn't a seed in one of them."

"Well—"

"If the confounded hens would only put the gardens back after they have taken them out and scratched them it would not be so bad, but they scatter them all over the yard and then fly over the fence and leave them scattered."

"I am sorry, but I can't help it."

"Well, I can help it, and I am going to help it, too!"

"Now, don't do anything you will be sorry for."

"Then let those confounded chickens stop doing things that I am sorry for! I'll bet that if I ever buy another home I will be mighty careful to find out who owns the houses each side of it, and if there are any boys on either side it'll be nix on the buy for me!"

"Fred is a good little fellow."

"Yes, he's an angel! When we tried to keep chickens he got a pet coon that got into our chicken house and reduced $9 worth of chickens to feathers, and I grinned like an idiot and told his mother that boys must have pets. Didn't I?"

"Yes."

"And when he batted a ball through our front window I wouldn't even permit his folks to pay for the damage, would I?"

"No-o."

"And since I have given up chickens and have gone to the expense of putting outside blinds on the house and spoiling the look of—"

"The outside blinds were not necessary and—"

"Now that I have gone to the expense of making a flower garden, nothing satisfies Mr. Fred but to get a lot of chickens!"

"Boys must have pets."

"Of course they must; but could he not have got some buff cochins or partridge cochins or some breed of chicken with too much weight and dignity to fly over fences But no! Nothing would suit him but to get a flock of measly bantams that are all wings and machinery and can fly like aeroplanes!"

"Well, I'll see if something cannot be done about it in a day or two. I don't like to make any trouble while he is sick."

"Sick?"

"Yes, sick."

"Who said he was sick?"

"His mother told me. And the doctor has been there twice today."

"What ails him?"

"Measles."

"Humph! A kid doesn't get very sick with the measles, does he?"

"Sometimes."

"I guess that's right—I read in today's paper where a baby died from an attack of measles."

"Fred's mother said his fever was up to 104."

"Pshaw! That's too bad. Run over, dear, and see how he is, won't you?"

"Why don't you go? I've got to finish getting supper."

"Aw, a man is too clumsy to be around a sick room. Have you got any of those quince preserves left?"

"A jar or two; why?"

"Take 'em over. I remember when I was a kid and getting over the diphtheria, the first thing mother let me have to eat when I began to get well was some quince preserves. You'll never know how good those preserves tasted to me. I don't believe I ever shall forget them."

"Well, I'll run over for a minute. You go and turn down the burner under the potatoes."

"And, dear—"

"Yes?"

"Tell him I'll take care of his chickens till he gets well."

"All right."

"And tell him I'll make him a kite while he is laid up. There used to be an old sailor in our neighborhood when I was a kid and—"

"All right."

"And tell him that I'll come over and tell him some stories as soon as he's better."

"Good gracious! I—"

"And tell him I'm going to bring him some sort of a toy from the 10-cent store every night, and he has got to try each day to guess what it is going to be."

"He'll be glad. Shall I say a word or two about the garden?"

"Good heavens, woman! Haven't you got any heart? What do we care about a measly little 85-cent garden? Why, in the world don't you take things as I do and not work yourself into a passion over a little punk old garden? We want the boy to get well! Fred's the best little chap I ever knew."

Mental Processes of Genius.

The distinguished French mathematician and physicist, Prof. Henri Poincare, has been made the subject of a curious psychological study by Doctor Toulouse. The most singular thing shown by his observations, Doctor Toulouse thinks, is that Poincare's discoveries have not been reached by concentration of mental effort, but have often come to him spontaneously, when his thoughts have been turned in quite different directions. Nevertheless, the mental concentration occurs, and the great mathematician, while engaged in his work, often becomes unmindful of matters of every-day life. For the faculty of suddenly conceiving new ideas when the thoughts have been turned away from the particular subject to which they refer, Doctor Toulouse proposes the name of "autoconduction." He regards it as specially characteristic of mathematicians.—Youth's Companion.

It is obvious that it may not be a discovery, but it was a long time before I thought of it: The moistening of my shoe blacking (paste) with a few drops of kerosene. I used to throw the blacking away when it began to get dry, until this occurred to me.—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Joke on Policeman.

A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a ham. Having paid for his purchase, he requested that it should be hung outside the shop door, saying that he would call back for it. The customer then paced up and down outside the shop till a policeman came in sight, and just as the man in blue caught his eye he grabbed the ham and bolted. The constable, however, soon collared the thief, as he thought, and hauled him back to the shop. Having explained the nature of the alleged crime to the shop assistant, he asked the latter to charge the offender. "But," said the assistant, as he realized the joke, "it's his own ham! He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose."

Get Little for Their Furs.

Furs are collected in great numbers along the upper waters of the Yukon river. The Indian or white trapper is often satisfied with a price hardly commensurate with market value, even after deducting the cost of marketing. When taken to the United States, a price two or three times that paid the trapper is obtained for many of the furs.

Rheumacide
IT CURES

Rheumatism and Blood Diseases
The cause of rheumatism is excess uric acid in the blood. To cure rheumatism this acid must be expelled from the system. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with oils and liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure rheumatism than paint will change the fiber of rotten wood.

Cures Rheumatism To Stay Cured.
Science has discovered a perfect and complete cure called Rheumacide. Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected marvelous cures. Rheumacide removes the cause, gets at the joints from the inside, sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels and kidneys. SUICIDED BY BLOWING OFF TOP OF HIS HEAD

M. B. Vaughan, Well Known Citizen Living Near Stockesdale, Killed Himself---Despondency Supposed to Have Been Cause.

Stokesdale, May 23.—M. B. Vaughn, who resided four miles north of here, yesterday committed suicide by blowing off the top of his head with a shot gun.

Mr. Vaughn had been in bad health for several months and yesterday, while the rest of the family were away from the house, got hold of the gun and placed the muzzle near the right temple and pulled the trigger, literally blowing off the top of his head from his eyes up. One of Mr. Vaughn's little girls was near the house at the time of the tragedy and hearing the gun fire ran to the house and found her father lying on the floor dead.

Mr. Vaughn tried to kill himself about two months ago by taking laudanum, but it was discovered by members of the family who summoned a doctor, who succeeded in saving his life, but his condition was very critical then for several days.

Mr. Vaughn leaves three daughters: Mrs. T. E. Caruthers of Wilco, W. Va., Mrs. Oscar Knight and Miss Myrtle Vaughn of Stokesdale, besides several brothers and sisters, his wife having died several years ago.

Mr. Vaughn was a respected member of Stokesdale Council, No. 91, Jr. O. U. A. M. and will be buried today with the honors of the order, at Mt. Zion Church.

PROGRESS OF INTERURBAN CONSTRUCTION ON LINE BEYOND CHARLOTTE

Charlotte, May 23.—Satisfactory progress is being made on the construction of the line of interurban between Charlotte and Gastonia and especially between the present terminus of the Hoskins track to the Catawba river, it being in the mind of the promoters to get this line in operation just as shortly as possible. About two miles leading from the Hoskins line toward the river is ready for the laying of crossties and rails and about an equal mileage has been prepared from Mount Holly this way. An immense fill just this way from Mount Holly which is nearly a mile in length and 25 or 30 feet high has taken consideable work, the contractors having this job having concentrated their labors. The firm of Clayborn, Brown & Co., has the contract for the construction work between Charlotte and the river.

A sufficient amount of crossties and rails has been ordered to build the line to the river and these will be laid as soon as they come. The crossties have already been distributed at intervals along the route, 20,000 having been placed at Mount Holly and about 5,000 at Hoskins. There is also a lot of 10,000 at Lowell. The rails necessary for the equipment of the line to the river are expected to arrive in the early future and will be laid at once by the construction forces of the Charlotte Street Electric Railway Company. The promoters have orders in for 900 tons of rail.

Both W. S. Lee and L. C. Harrison, the local geniuses in the mammoth enterprise, have been keeping a strict eye on the operations and are well informed as to the progress that is being made. It is their intention to equip and operate the line from Charlotte to the river just as soon as possible in order to allow local people the pleasant privilege of taking trips to the river during the summer months and early fall. It is also their plans to build the line as rapidly as the grading is done in order to allow opportunity for people here to ride out and witness the work as it is in progress just beyond the temporary termini as they shall be established.

Of particular interest will be the immense job of spanning the Catawba river at Mount Holly with the big steel bridge which is to be constructed. The material for this structure has been ordered for several weeks and it is expected that work will begin there at an early date in order that no delay may be encountered in equipping and operating the entire line from Charlotte to Kings Mountain within the time stipulated in the several contracts. Representatives of the American Steel Company, which succeeded in getting the contract for furnishing the bridge materials, will have entire charge of the building of this span.

The promoters are now arranging to place their orders for passenger cars to be used on the interurban. These cars will be made by special pattern and according to the latest and most improved methods of interurban construction at High Point, the Dukes having lately secured by purchase a large interest in the car shops of that town. The passenger cars will be 60 feet in length and will have the various compartments that are common to the ordinary passenger car in common use and acceptance. The details of this contract have not yet been worked out, but it is assured that no delay will come about in having these cars ready for operation within the necessary period of time.

Information coming to the offices of the Piedmont Traction Company here from the work being done in South Carolina, particularly between Greenville and Greenwood, indicates that great progress is being made there. The firm of W. J. Oliver & Co., which secured that grading contract at a figure of approximately $1,000,000, has let sub-contracts all along the way to the end that the work might be completed within the stipulated time and activities continue all along the route at a rapid rate.

With the larger contracts out of the way, local promoters of the interurban are giving their time to almost purely local matters, together with the affairs that continually turn up in connection with the work that is already in progress and the contracts for material that have already been let.

Saved Child From Death.

"After our child had suffered from severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. T. Richardson, of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicine seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy." For coughs, colds, hoarseness, lagrippe, asthma, croup and sore lungs, its the most infalliable remedy that's made. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

THE DEADLOCK IN THE SENATE

Insurgents Say Gallinger Represents All They Oppose.

WEST WON LIKE CONTEST.

The Game of Golf Interferes With the Game of Politics—Dickinson Did Not Feel at Home In Taft Cabinet—"Old Guard" Member Criticises Appointment of Stimson.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 23.—(Special.)—The last contest over president pro tem. of the senate previous to that which now promises to be very prolonged was the west against the east. The west won. Senator Hoar of Massachusetts was the candidate of the east. The west put forward Senator Manderson of Nebraska, and he was elected. Four new states had then recently been admitted, and they joined a number of other western men and won for the west.

Not Personal Pique.

It is vehemently asserted by the insurgent Republican senators that they are not opposing Senator Gallinger, the Republican caucus nominee, because of personal pique on account of the fact that they did not get all they wanted in committee assignments, but because they feel that Gallinger is a type or represents a condition antagonistic to what they stand for in their contentions. The office of president pro tem. does not amount to anything. No man occupying the place can cast a deciding vote, as does the vice president. As a senator he votes irrespective of his position.

Golf Breaking Up a Party?

During the contest over the presidency of the senate Senator Bourne of Oregon was absent. As president of the progressive Republicans these senators thought he ought to be on hand, but it was found that he was at Hot Springs for his health. "Rather, say, playing golf," remarked one of the insurgents. "It seems to me that there is danger of our party being broken up by this game of golf. Bourne is devoted to it. Cummins is almost as bad, and Bristow has been bitten and may be corrupted. It is getting serious."

"Golf is the worst of all bad habits," remarked Senator Clapp. "A man may go on a bat, and he will get over it and return to his work. He won't spend the second day telling all about his achievements while he was on the bat."

And this is the president's favorite game and pastime. It was golf which T. Roosevelt described as "an old woman's game."

Didn't Feel At Home.

There might have been differences regarding the movement of troops to Mexico which caused Secretary Dickinson to resign as secretary of war, but the secretary frankly told his friends that he never felt at home in a Republican administration. "I never voted anything but a Democratic ticket in my life," said the secretary, "and I have all the feelings of a Democrat. When the president and the other members of his cabinet were discussing intimate Republican politics and policies in my presence I always felt embarrassed and out of place."

A Sop That Failed.

It was generally agreed in Washington that President Taft put Henry L. Stimson in the cabinet as a sop to former President Roosevelt. New York standpatters made that assertion with great positiveness. "It will fail of its purpose," remarked the most prominent man of the old guard, "for Roosevelt was not consulted and will not be pleased. If the president wanted to do something for Roosevelt he should recall the commission which he has given to the mining engineer—who has been called a liar several times in court proceedings in Washington—to be ambassador to the coronation of King George V. and send Roosevelt on the mission. Roosevelt is the one man in the United States to be selected for that mission. He is the first and former Vice President Fairbanks is the second to be considered. But the president does not seem to have been well advised in dealing with this matter."

And the man who talked in that strain had no reason to be fond of Roosevelt. At the same time he understood what would have pleased the ex-president more than anything else.

Oscar Took Notice.

One day when Oscar Underwood looked about the house and saw three men in the house besides the man who was making a speech on the tariff he went down to his seat and was lost in meditation for a time. Soon after he announced that he was going to close general debate. He literally let the house "talk itself out."

Just why a man will stand up and read or repeat a committed speech to three of 391 members of the house is one of the strangest things in house affairs. The latitude for debate on the tariff has been as wide as the members could wish. The Democratic leaders have evidently believed that they had as good arguments as their opponents, for they have been perfectly willing to allow all the talk anybody could desire.

JENNINGS HAS BIG ADVANTAGE

While Rivals Are Using Veterans He Is Experimenting.

BIG LEAD GIVES HIM CHANCE.

By TOMMY CLARK.

The big lead that the Detroit Tigers have now gives Manager Hugh Jennings a unique advantage over all his rivals—an advantage no other big league pilot has ever had as far as known.

It really means that the big lead has given Jennings a chance to go on what is practically a second spring training trip. He has been experimenting where other leaders do not dare take chances.

Take, for instance, Connie Mack. The manager of the Athletics is using his veteran pitchers over and over again to win enough games to give his individual players the courage and confidence necessary to make them into a winning combinatiton. It is so with several other first division clubs.

It is bad for a ball club to find it necessary at this early date to overwork veterans. Men like Plank and Bender have seen too many years in service to round into shape rapidly at this stage of the season. It takes months to get into real shape.

And yet the manager cannot afford to use youngsters because games must be won. There is the attendance to think of for one thing, and there is the psychological effect on his players in defeat for another thing. He might have a great twirler hidden away in his list of colt twirlers. He sends him in once, twice, possibly three times. The team is in the dumps and doesn't support him. He finds it almost impossible to get a line on him. His following is clamoring for victory, and his players are downcast.

He finds that he must work his regulars—men he is absolutely sure of. Probably when a game is cinched or defeat is certain he'll send in one of the youngsters to get a line on his new recruits. The ones who make good first are the ones that are kept. Maybe the best one is sent back to the minors because he hasn't shown any form. With his new infielders and outfielders it is much the same way. Many a baseball star has gone along for weeks before suddenly flashing out and showing his real class.

With Jennings it is different. While his seven rivals are worrying about not being able to give each one of the recruits the proper amount of study, Jennings simply smiles and sits back calmly to judge each youngster on his individual merit.

While victory is always sweet to him, the loss of one, two or even more games is nothing vital with the lead he has. He can afford to take chances.

He can send youngsters in to pitch day after day until they have all shown him not once but many times what they can do in the box, and under safe cover of that lead he can experiment too. He can work all sorts of plans out on his team with never a fear of having some other team overhaul him.

This does not mean much now, but in the midseason to come it does, for then, while other managers are worrying because their veterans are showing signs of tiring after their hard spring service, his should be in the best of condition, because in getting into shape in the early stages they were not overworked. And while other managers have not dared to try out new men or new plans of attack and defense he has been developing his team along these lines.

It's not the lead they have now that counts; it's how that lead will affect the play of the Tigers in July and August and September that worries the men who figure on passing Detroit.

"RULE OF THE PEOPLE" DANIELS' SUBJECT TUESDAY

Raleigh Editor Was Commencement Orator at Greenville---First Class of East Carolina Training School Graduated.

Special to Telegram.

Greenville, May 23.—The first commencement of the East Carolina Training School closed this morning with an address by Hon. Josephus Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer.

Diplomas were presented to the first class of graduates by Dr. J. Y. Joyner, President of the Board of Trustees, following the address by Mr. Daniels.

The commencement period was of particular interest and brought a number of visitors to this place. All the exercises were largely attended. The student body of this institution numbered 226 this year and the graduating class was composed of thirteen young women.

Mr. Daniels' address

Mr. Daniels' speech this morning is briefly summarized as follows:

Mr. Daniels spoke on the "Rule of the People" and pointed out the obstacles thrown in the way of popular government from the time that the electoral college was devised to give the selection of President to a small class than to the popular vote down to this time when the will of the people is thwarted by the alliance between the Boss in politics and the Captain of Industry who is ready to pay for special privileges and immunity from punishment for the violation of the law. He traced the slow process by which the people wrested the selection of a President from electors chosen by Legislatures, thereby overturning this piece of Constitution finesse invented to prevent the election of the Chief Executive by the popular vote. It was only by the invention of the National Convention that electors were made mere messengers to carry out the decree of the people instead of the real rulers. In like manner he pointed out the steps taken to try to make our Senate a virtual House of Lords and how the agitation for direct election has resulted in primaries in many States and the Oregon plan in others which have practically taken out of the hands of Legislators the selection of the Senators and committed it to the people. These two methods of indirection, invented by those who denied the right of the people to govern themselves, were declared to be only the two most glaring of several measures and methods devised by the school of Hamilton to make popular government almost impossible in the new republic, but before leaving the advocacy of electing Senators by the people, Mr. Daniels touched upon the scandal of the election of Lorimer and other like legislative crimes and the disgrace which the Senate has brought upon itself by voting to keep a man in his seat when bribery was notorious in the body that gave Lorimer the certificate of election.

In showing the mistake of the life tenure of judges and their claiming the right to annul legislative acts, the speaker touched upon the Supreme Court decisions in the Standard Oil case and approved the declaration of Justice Harlan that such an interpretation of the law was "dangerous."

Mr. Daniels thought that not since the time the Federal Constitution was in the making had the American people been so keenly alive to questions that looked to restoring representative government and giving effect to the will of the people as now. He showed how alliances between political bosses and trusts magnates had so destroyed popular government that there is a widespread and determined purpose in all parties to rid their party from the control of these unholy conspiracies and government from the selfish policies dictated by "the interests." In the belief by many people that they could not make their wishes felt and in the resolve to end competition has come about seven measures looking to bettering conditions so as to restore popular government. They were enumerated as follows: 1. The Australian Ballot; 2. Legalized Primary; 3. Corrupt Practice Acts; 4. Publicity of campaign contributions; 5. Referendum and Initiative; 6. The Recall; 7. Commission form of Municipal Government. He pointed out that all these measures had been born out of a desire to restore the right of the people to rule and to find agencies by which their will should be ascertained and made effective. There is no popular government in the real sense unless the people rule. They have not ruled in many States and in the Senate their will has been flouted and scorned. As to these several measures of reform devised to end the evils in party government and in legislation, Mr. Daniels said they should be carefully studied and applied only when people were sufficiently informed and alive to make them valued agencies of reform. He believed there had been less agitation in North Carolina for these agencies than elsewsere because the evils of government were less here and because so many people had not studied their operation, and debated the measures that have found so much favor elsewhere. He gave the story of Oregon's forward step and told how these new measures had worked in that State. He believed that most of them should be put into operation in North Carolina as a preventive of bad conditions on the theory that an ounce of preventation is worth a pound of care. But he did not advocate any of them as a panacea for all the evils. Reforms come slowly and may not be imposed from without. They must be adopted because conditions demand them and the new and better methods were most popular where there was least illiteracy. The standard of general education and information could be gauged by the interest taken in great new questions and adoption of such progressive measures as would better enable the people to be the final arbiters of government.

If North Carolina is behind in some things—as was admitted—it was due to the failure in the past to educate all the people. Universal education is the condition precedent to general progress and uplift. The chief need is universal education but that halts for the lack of well-trained teachers. The leader in the better conditions in North Carolina is the teacher—and generally this leader is a woman who inspires a thirst for knowledge and leads the youths into light. The wisdom of the State in providing for the education and training of teachers, too long neglected, was emphasized and the good work of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School was highly commended.

Coating of Vaporization.

Electroplating calls for a cell, a current and a conducting surface. A new process invented by a Zurich engineer gives coatings not only upon metal surfaces, but upon plaster, glass, celluloid, wood or paper. It is adapted for producing a veneer of tin, lead, copper, aluminum, or even gold or silver. The metal or its solution is vaporized under a pressure of 40 to 60 pounds per square inch, and the vapor is allowed to escape from a small orifice, when it cools instantly, projecting solid particles of the metal against any surface with such force that a homogeneous solid coating is formed at once and may be made a quarter of an inch thick in a few seconds. This coating may be made adherent, for decoration or protection, or detachable, for reproductions, etc. Coated objects of metal, wood and paper have been shown in Zurich, and the process promises to become important.

A Partnership.

"My father and I know everything in the world," said a small boy to his companion.

"All right," the latter said. "Where's Asia?"

It was a stiff question, but the little fellow answered coolly: "That is one of the questions my father knows."

"She's an angel!"

"Perhaps so, but—"

"But what?" Have you anything to say against her?"

"Not a thing in the world; but she's probably the first angel who ever wore ostrich plumes on her halo."

CHARLOTTE FIRST TEAM BLANKED HERE

Clapp's two-base hit in the fourth inning scored Doak from first base and made the only run of yesterday's game with Charlotte, which was a pitcher's battle with Morrisey and Hankie pitted against each other. Time after time the opposing teams had men on bases but by superior work the man on the knoll kept the runners away from the home plate. The Patriots had ten men left on bases during the eight innings they were at the bat, an unusually large number considering the small score and small number of hits.

Morrisey showed up as a better pitcher than Hankie. The former allowed only seven hits, all singles, and walked only two men. Hankie allowed eight hits for a total of ten bases, walked three men and hit another, and in addition had two wild pitches charged against him. Morrisey walked one man purposely. The Greensboro twirler was effective at all times. It was the first shut-out game on the local diamond this season.

The only run of the game was made in the fourth inning after two men were down and a run was not expected. Fuller led off with a hit, went to second on Bentley's sacrifice and to third on a wild pitch. Doak hit a grounder to Cross and Fuller was thrown out at the plate. Clapp then lined out a pretty drive to center field fence, Doak scoring, and Clapp going to second. Greensboro had men on third two or three other times in the game, as did Charlotte, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. Stewart was nailed at the plate on time in an attempt to score on an infield grounder.

The game was featured by a neat double play on each side, the battery work of the two teams and the two-base hits of Clapp and Bentley. Both teams fielded well, only one error being charged against each team.

ANDERSON CAME BACK AND BEAT SPARTANBURG

Spartanburg, S. C., May 23.—Anderson took the second game from the locals this afternoon, 7 to 3 and broke even on this series. The Electricians hit Vickery for extra bases and he was taken out in the third with two outs. Laval was good but the game was lost. Scanlon was slightly wild at first but got steady and held the locals down. A rare tripple play was made by the locals. Short flagged a line drive and threw to third then to second.

ARGUMENT OF APPEALS IN SUPREME COURT NEAR TERMINATION

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 23.—The argument of appeals for this term of the North Carolina Supreme Court will terminate with the hearings in three state cases that are set at the foot of the docket for the sixteenth week calendar that was called today. They are State vs. Holly, from New Hanover; State vs. George Mayhew, from Union and State vs. Smith and Liles from Polk county. These appeals are to be called just as soon as the five appeals regularly on the Sixteenth calendar are heard. These are Henny vs. Hilliard; Lanning vs. Telegraph Co.; Westerfeldt vs. Adams; Stewart vs. Stewart and Bird vs. Lumber Co.

The case of State vs. J. C. Holly, from New Hanover, is the famous case growing out of the burning of Rock Springs Hotel. Holly was the proprietor and it developed that he had murdered Edward Cromwell, a boy connected with the hotel for the evident purpose of collecting life insurance, having a $2,500 policy with the Greensboro Life Insurance Co. and also set fire to the hotel to collect excessive insurance on his hotel furniture. Holly is under sentence to be electrocuted. His trial in Wilmington was one of the most startling that has occurred in the state for a great while.

Another of the end of the docket cases to be argued is State vs. Mayhew and others which involves the solicitor's fees that should be allowed for prosecutions in the noted Lyles murder case from Union county. The solicitor claimed $20 fee in each case and the state insists that the fees should be $10 each, only, for the reason that the defendants were insolvent and the state had to pay the fees and 2768 of the Revisal prescribes that in case of insolvency the fees shall be one-half. The issue is as to the application of this to fees on capital cases.

The third State case is State vs. Smith & Liles, from Polk county in which the two defendants are under sentence for slandering an innocent woman. In this case the State admits error on the part of the trial judge in his charge to the jury but insists that the errors were not material. And Attorney General Bickett closes his brief with this proposition: "In the absence of the errors pointed out we feel that the balance of the charge would probably be open to no objection." Query: Does the truth absorb the error, or "shall the righteous perish with the ungodly?"

Forged Signatures to Secure License.

Couples aspiring to the delights of married life frequently show great originality in avoiding difficulties in securing the license. A young man yesterday rather overstepped the bounds in attempting to secure his ticket to matrimonial bliss. His claims were presented and a consent given him by the Register of Deeds for the signature of his father, who, as was known about the office, resided in Stokesdale. In a short time the applicant reappeared with the signature duly affixed and bearing W. O. Stratford's name as witness. The ever-watchful force in the office "smelled a rat" and a short investigation proved the signatures to be clever forgeries. At the present writing the prospective groom-to-be still lacks the necessary license to marry.

Tuft of Periwak Feathers.

On the apex of the crown worn by the prince of Wales on special occasions is a curious feather, or rather tuft of feathers, the top of which is adorned with a gold thread. The value of this feather is estimated at $50,000, and it has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in human possession. Twenty years passed after the first hunter sent out to procure the feather before it was attained, and during that period more than a dozen hunters had lost their lives in the quest.

The costly tuft of periwak feathers and the extraordinary danger incurred in procuring it was due to the fact that the periwak, for some unknown reason, is to be found only in dense jungles in which tigers make their lair.

Superstition in New York.

New Yorkers may laugh at Chicago as unduly superstitions in cutting thirteen out in renumbering its downtown buildings, states the New York Tribune, but that same superstition is honored right here at home. Not one of the latest skyscraperrs has a thirteenth floor, the renting agents insisting on skipping the number on the ground that tenants object to it as a hoodoo.

Many a man's failure is due to the fact that he bit off more than he could chew.
